Clue Unearthed To 'Lost Colony'

U. S. Archeologists Find Traces of an Old Fort; Mystery Revealed.

WASHINGTON. — Excavating on Roanoke island, government archeologists claim to have found evidence of an ancient fort which may have housed the ill-starred "Lost Colony" of North Carolina.

They also found a charcoal pit which, they said, may have been prepared as one of the last acts of the colonists before they disappeared.

The excavation is under way at the Fort Raleigh national historic site, not far from Kitty Hawk, N. C., where the Wright brothers gave aviation its start.

Fort of Great Age.

J. C. Harrington, national park service archeologist, who is directing the work, said that three exploratory trenches have disclosed the profile of a ditch or moat 10 feet wide and 5½ feet deep which has been filled in by erosion of a fort parapet.

"The depth and character of the fill indicate that the fort is of great age, in contrast to the remains of Civil war forts of earthen construction elsewhere on Roanoke island," Harrington said.

"Near the bottom of the moat, in one of the trenches, a large fragment of hand-made brick and a large piece of strap iron were found, bringing to mind the fact that when Gov. John White of the 'Lost Colony' returned to the front in 1591 and found that the colonists had disappeared, he discovered iron and other heavy objects strewn about in great confusion."

Victims of Indians.

In furtherance of charter rights from Queen Elizabeth to Sir Walter Raleigh, Sir Richard Grenville established a colony of 108 persons on the island in 1585. The group returned to England with Sir Francis Drake in 1586. Members of a second party of 15, left at Roanoke island the same year, apparently were killed by the Indians.

John White's colony arrived in 1857, and in August of that year Virginia Dare was born, the first white native of the new world. White went to England for supplies. When he returned, all of the colonists had disappeared.

As late as 1602, Raleigh was seeking the missing group. Neither he nor the later settlers of Jamestown, Va., were able to find traces of them.

Ruins of the Roanoke island fort were described in 1709, and in 1895 they were still faintly visible.

Mother Views Body of Son, Dies Few Minutes Later

ATLANTA. — Mrs. Susan Alice McCorkle, 70, of Tampa, died a few minutes after viewing the body of her son and observing, "It's too much for me. I want to go with him."

Mrs. McCorkle was here for the funeral of Dr. Robert L. McCorkle, who was electrocuted in an auto accident near Gaffney, S. C. Dr. McCorkle survived the crash of his car into a pole. He was killed when he sought to re-enter the car. A 23,000-volt power line had been dropped upon it by the impact.

Ghost Town in California To Be Made a State Park

COLUMBIA, CALIF. — Believed to be the first brick public schoolhouse in California, a red brick structure on top of Burial Hill in this ghost mining town has been bought by the Columbia Historic Park association.

Built in 1861, the schoolhouse will be the cornerstone upon which the boundaries of Columbia state park will be based. It will be restored and preserved as a monument to California's early-day school system.

This purchase was part of a campaign to acquire all the well-preserved historic buildings in the old mining town, which is to be restored.

Speeding through an intersection stop sign, one of these drivers collided with another car. The force of the crash entangled the two cars and they skidded together across the intersection and slammed into a stone wall. Both drivers and a passenger were killed, two were seriously injured. National Conservation Bureau reports that disregard of traffic control devices ranks third as a cause of death in motor vehicle accidents.

Despite Loss of Arms, Life Is Normal for This Woman

SAN BERNARDINO, CALIF. — The story of Mrs. Ann Reeves might be an inspiration to many amputee veterans of World War II who are wondering about returning to a normal life.

Mrs. Reeves, now 35, lost both her arms just below the elbow when she was nine.

Soon after she was fitted with artificial hands, she discarded them in favor of learning how to use what was left of her arms.

She discovered that by placing her elbows together she could perform all but a few of the tasks required of a nine-year-old.

Today Mrs. Reeves is the mother of three children for whom she has cared since their birth. She needs no help with her laundering, ironing or other jobs connected with the household.

Mrs. Reeves dresses and grooms herself. She sews her own and her children's clothes.

She works in her garden. She embroiders. She has even found time for a hobby, painting.

Divorce Hidden 12 Years, She Gets Housekeeper Pay

LOS ANGELES.—Mrs. Catherine Lazzarevich, 44, who discovered she had been divorced 12 years too soon, was awarded $2,330 for her housekeeping services for John Lazzarevich, 49, plumbing contractor.

Judge Charles S. Burnell of Superior court also ordered the husband to pay $75 a month support for their son, Daniel, 11.

The couple, married 25 years ago, was divorced in 1935 and reconciled in 1935. Mrs. Lazzarevich testified her husband told her there was no need for remarrying as the final decree never had been entered.

Twelve years later she found the divorce was in effect.

Nation's Automobiles Are Doing Well, Says Report

WASHINGTON.—The nation's automobiles, most of them prewar models, seem to get better with age.

American Automobile association reports there were fewer automobile breakdowns in 1946 than in the record year of 1945.

The AAA said increased supplies of tires and spare parts enable motorists to keep their cars in much better repair.

An estimate based on reports from 14,000 AAA member garages showed a drop in 1946 of more than 10 per cent in the number of mechanical breakdowns below 1945.

Tire trouble, as usual, was the No. 1 cause for emergency calls. Next in line was battery trouble, then ignition failures and bad carburetors.

And drivers are still absentminded. The report showed that 779,000 drivers ran out of gas, and 372,000 either lost their keys or locked themselves out.

Uncle Sam Says

Hm. would you like a fat raise? Dream stuff, you say? It isn't. It's a cold-cash, brass tacks reality—if you want it to be. How do you go about it? Very simple. Just sign up for the Payroll Savings Plan where you work or the Bond-a-Month Plan where you bank. For every $3 you put away now, you get $4 in ten years. Take part of your pay each week in U. S. Savings Bonds. That's all. That's a fat gain in any man's arithmetic. And if ten years seems like a long time to look ahead, just give a thought to the smart Americans who bought bonds ten years ago, and hung on to them. Act now. Ten years will be gone before you know it!
